The following additional particulars have been learned: When the combatants took position, several gentlemen present, but not immediately connected with the affair, were saked to retire. They did so. The physician then gave the word: "Gentlemen, are you ready? Fire—ene, two, three." The shots were to be exchanged after the word "fire" and before the word "three." At the word "one" both pistols were discharged in quick succession, but without effect. The same programme was then repeated, both the reports being almost simultaneous, and just at the word "one." As Elam staggered from the effect of his wound, his second ran loward and assisted him to cushions, which were laid on the ground. The wounded man

Yesterday afternoon Crawford was assisting Henry Eversman, janitor of the Bixth District school, on Sycamore, just above Fifth street, to put in the winter supply of coal. The men were working in the yard, and the little girl happened to pass. She knew Crawford well, and when he paused in his work and told her he would give her as some candy if she would come in, she readily consented. He gave the coild a sent, and told her to come with him, at the same time taking her into one of the water-closets. Before his herrible intentions had been carried out the girl screamed, and he, fearful of detection, allowed her to go. Meanwhile the janitor, not trying to put a stop to what was going on, immediately started for Hammond street police station, where he informed Sergeant Graham of the case. When the officer

The rergeant then went to the Dugan home, where he found Mary crying and tell-ing the story to her mother. The facts in the case thus verified, Officers Farrell and Manly were detailed to arrest Crawford. He had quit work and gone home, and it was there that the policeman discovered him. He sulledly denied the girl's story, which is corroborated by the jinitor, and refused to talk further. Lieut, Burke says that some months Boycotting the Trade Dellar. NEW ORLEANS, June 30.—There is not sufficient money in the State treasury to the credit of the interest fund to pay the July interest on State bonds, but the fiscal agent will advance the additional sum necessary, and the interest be promptly paid. The change in the Fox law made by the last Legislature caused some delay in collections, but local capitalists are so well satisfied with the financial condition of the State that they cheerfully advance funds required to meet maturing obligations.

Rev. Mr. Everts atrived, followed by the deacons. He protested to Dr. Parker against the outrageous intrusion, but the revvened doctor simply replied and he was determined to finish what he had come to do. Before the great had a filled, the spacious edifice was recounding with inquiries, protestations and recriminations. Ranged around the baptistry were the children whom Dr. Parker had now begun to beptise. The invading party could not be persuaded to leave. It became painfully evident that a fierce strife was to take place. While the women and elders of the two congregations were making pandemonium of the place, the two ministers carried on a bitter war of words between the two sides between th
